Wedding Planners

Synopsis

When it's wedding time, it isn't only the bride who finds her happily ever after. Come along as wedding planners, photographers, and dress shop owners find a groom of their own. DEEP IN THE HEART OF MAYHEM Welcome to the Texas Hill Country, y'all! It's the perfect place for love, weddings, and mayhem! Brooke Morrow never dreamed she would end up coordinating a wedding for Hollywood starlet, Matti Maynor. Against her better judgment, she finds herself organizing the wedding of the century. It doesn't help that Matti is marrying Texas senator, Jake Bradford, who happens to be Brooke's ex. Between the bride and the altar stands a whodunit complicated enough to send even the best sleuth running for the hills. Can Brooke survive the twists and turns while coordinating a wedding she'd sooner avoid? Will the whodunit be solved in time for the big day? Chaos blooms like a field of Texas bluebonnets in this quirky cozy-ette by wedding coordinator (and mother-of-the-bride) Janice Thompson. IF THE DRESS FITS Cindi no longer believes in happily-ever-after, which is a problem since she owns a bridal shop in Atlanta—something she always wanted until her dream of having her own personal love story was dashed when her parents announced their divorce. Disillusioned, bitter, and occasionally confused, she decides to sell her business. And then along comes someone from her past who wants to buy her shop and threatens to steal her heart again. LADY SLIPPER WEDDINGS Wedding planner Noelle hasn't returned home since being jilted years ago, but now her beloved grandmother has a second chance at love and asks Noelle to plan the wedding. All she has to do is avoid her ex-fiancé. Problem is, her ex is now a small town doctor and their mutual friend, the town sheriff, is determined to push them together. Rocky's greatest regret is leaving Noelle behind so he could attend medical school. When Noelle's effort to avoid Rocky on the ski slopes backfires and lands her under Rocky's medical care, he determines to win her back. Can they set their differences aside and have their own second chance at love? SPRING BEAUTY INN Wedding planner Kathy Murray snags a high profile client for a spring wedding at her family inn—a dream come true. When her brother insists their friend—her teenage crush—bring his expertise into play, Kathy is determined to keep her heart on a leash and do her job. For Mike Pierce, helping his friend pull off a wedding intended to put a facelift to the family inn is a way to pay back years of friendship. Kathy does not want him around for some reason. But he is determined to win her trust and heart in the process.

Customer Reviews

Ever since wearing out my own DVD copy of the Jennifer Lopez film, The Wedding Planner, I've been hooked on Wedding Planner and related wedding industry books. These four perfectly fit the bill! Set in places as diverse as Mackinac Island and The Texas Hill country and from Georgia to Colorado - IF THE DRESS FITS By Debby Mayne, LADY SLIPPER WEDDINGS by Paige Winship Dooly, SPRING BEAUTY INN By Rose Verde And DEEP IN THE HEART OF MAYHEM By Janice Thompson all delight with their heroes and heroines who expertly manage and carry off celebrity and local wedding events but are hopeless at successfully navigating their own routes to Love. Faith, family, and reconnecting with past friends (and crushes!) are also woven through these books ~ reminding us of trusting in the Lord (as in the words of Rose Verde's heroine Kathy Murray: "Maybe God had been speaking, she just hadn't been listening.")

Ms. Dooly writes a good story. However, one thing jumped out at me enough that I stopped reading to do the math. Noelle is 30 and her grandmother is 66. There needs to be a little more difference in their ages. Example: I'm 64, my youngest son is 35 and my oldest grandchild is only 14.

I read this collection of stories written by four wonderful authors of romance via an -US KINDLE Unlimited download. Come on now what woman hasn't yearned for the day that she finds herself walking down the aisle towards the altar all dressed in white to have her HEA come true with the man she adores. However, there are two groups of women for which this day is actually one of nothing less than a day of frustration; frustration of not being the bride who's getting married. The first group is one some of you have been part of, that of being a bridesmaid. Being part of this group, you might feel resentful and frustrated in seeing one friend after another getting married with you once again being a bridesmaid. The second group consists of wedding planners, those wonderful individuals who work side by side with the bride making sure all the wedding details deliver a dream wedding, dress shop owners making sure each bride had her dream bridal gown, and photographers making sure all the marvelous details of the event are meticulously recorded for posterity. It doesn't help the situation any when someone from their past shows up and puts a damper on what's transpiring; the groom who happens to be the planner's ex, a former lover wanting to buy the bridal shop from the owner and threatening to steal her heart again, a wedding planner's is helping her beloved grandmother get married with a second chance at love has to avoid her former lover and now the small town's doctor and her own second chance romance; and then there's the wedding planner's brother who insists their friend lend his expertise to the wedding plans, and who've guess it's a former ex as well. Wedding planning while having an ex-lover floating around can make for a dreadful situation. Imagine helping someone make their HEA come true, and at the same time thinking of what might have been had their own HEA not fallen apart. The female protagonists in these stories are just waiting for a second chance for romance to occur, but only if all the participants are willing to put aside their past experiences of having lost a love and the reasons related to them. So, if you're into second chance romances, then this collection is for you; and why I've given it 5 STARS.

This is a good book and it has several good stories about wedding planners finding love and happiness and great weddings

Good stories in this series of books. Light hearted, fun reading.
