

The book was found

How I Discovered Poetry (Ala Notable Children's Books. Older Readers)

Synopsis

A powerful and thought-provoking Civil Rights era memoir from one of America's most celebrated poets. Looking back on her childhood in the 1950s, Newbery Honor winner and National Book Award finalist Marilyn Nelson tells the story of her development as an artist and young woman through fifty eye-opening poems. Readers are given an intimate portrait of her growing self-awareness and artistic inspiration along with a larger view of the world around her: racial tensions, the Cold War era, and the first stirrings of the feminist movement. A first-person account of African-American history, this is a book to study, discuss, and treasure.

Book Information

Series: Ala Notable Children's Books. Older Readers

Hardcover: 112 pages

Publisher: Dial Books; First Edition edition (January 14, 2014)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0803733046

ISBN-13: 978-0803733046

Product Dimensions: 6 x 0.7 x 8.5 inches

Shipping Weight: 12.8 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 4.0 out of 5 stars 12 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #786,508 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #84 in Books > Teens >

Biographies > Literary #118 in Books > Teens > Literature & Fiction > Poetry #273 in Books > Teens > Biographies > Historical

Age Range: 12 - 17 years

Grade Level: 7 and up

Customer Reviews

Gr 6 Up "Nelson traces her childhood and developing awareness of civil rights issues in this eloquent collection of 50 unrhymed sonnets. In 1950, her father, one of the first African American Air Force officers, is recalled to duty, launching the family on the first of several cross-country moves. Her father takes a leave from law school, her mother takes leave from teaching, and: "Our leaves become feathers. With wings we wave good-bye to our cousins." Their travels take them from Cleveland to Texas, Colorado, Kansas, California, Maine, and Oklahoma; the leave-takings are always painful. In "Traveling Light," she muses over the family dogs (Pudgy, Lady, and General) left behind. "Daddy explains. We've been transferred again. We stand numb as he gives away our toys." Close family ties help them confront the small-mindedness and racism encountered along the way. In "Bad Name," she observes: "TV is black-and-white, but people aren't. There's a bad name mean people might call you, but words aren't sticks and stones." Books, television shows, and friends provide a respite from the menace of the Cold War. Through snatches of grown-up conversation, she learns of Rosa Parks, Emmett Till, and Little Rock. She overcomes school yard bullies, wonders about boys, and is humiliated by a teacher who makes her read aloud a racist poem: "She smiled harder and harder until I stood and opened my mouth to banjo-playing darkiesâ |." This hurtful episode only underscores the awesome power of words and leads Nelson to wonder whether "there's a poet behind my face." Altogether, Nelson's poems offer a candid portrait of her formative years as well as a triumphant message, which will resonate with readers, young and old, who cherish and recognize the power of words and stories.â "Marilyn Taniguchi, Beverly Hills Public Library, CA

In this fictionalized memoir in verse, renowned poet Nelson lyrically recounts her passage from ages 4 to 14, from numerous military base homes; through friends, schools, and dogs; and from developmental stages of initiative through industry to identity. Chronicling the decade of 1950s America, a young self-aware speaker connects national events to daily life experiences. In the authorâ™s note of her self-ascribed âœportrait of an artist as a young American Negro girl,â • Nelson disclaims that the âœelâ • in the title is she. Rather, her autobiographically inspired collection of 50 nonrhyming sonnets is enhanced by research and imagination. The title poem comes near the end and is breathtaking in the perverse cruelty the young speaker experiences from an educator. Hooperâ™s line-and-shade illustrations, along with Nelsonâ™s family photos, set a quiet and respectful tone and offer readers the feeling of taking an unsolicited peek behind a heavy curtain. For fans of Nelsonâ™s impressive body of childrenâ™s and adult poetry, including the brilliant A Wreath for Emmett Till (2005), this insight into her modulated memories gratifies that heartfelt belief that here writes a woman of great substance. Grades 7-12. --Gail Bush

These deceptively simple poems, from a young African-American girl trying to understand, and later, act upon, the world of America in the fifties and sixties, touched my heart. I love the poems, the pictures, the layout, and the depth under the simplicity. Well done, Marilyn Nelson! I heard the author read from the book at the Furious Flower Poetry Conference a week ago and made a little YouTube if other viewers want to see it. Just Google her name and mine, and it should show up.

Marilyn Nelson's poems charmingly evoke her younger self, exploring the wonders of poetry while experiencing life as a girl before and during the Civil Rights era. Her masterful use of language shines through, even as she describes the plainest pleasures of life in maritime Maine, and her dawning realizations of American injustice, black culture, family life, and poetry as a transformative force.

Accessible poetry. Well written. Heard the author speak and ordered this book and a Wreath for Emmett Till as well. i'm thinking that these will both be great resources for my middle school classroom this summer.

Marilyn Nelson is a real charmer, whose poems and this story of how she became a poet are interesting. A good buy. A good reading experience.

Beautiful, moving work by one of our best poets.

Ok

Banal. Disconnected

This is a short book of poetry, however loaded with so many powerful verses. What I value in quality poetry is that it is not the words that are written but the empty spaces that fill your brain with thought, ideas, and questions. Marilyn Nelson writes through the voice of a kid growing up during Civil Rights. I am amazed by how adults can speak a genuine voice of adolescence. These are poems that need to be read slowly so that the reader can process the time period, the emotions, and how kids see the world. Through their eyes that are naive the world of serious conflict does not seem so massive, but still influential. Reading this book has reignited by passion for reading other poetry. This would also be a great addition to a classroom that studies this time period.

Download to continue reading...

How I Discovered Poetry (Ala Notable Children's Books. Older Readers) Drowned City: Hurricane Katrina and New Orleans (Ala Notable Children's Books. Older Readers) The Hired Girl (Ala Notable Children's Books. Older Readers) I Ain't Gonna Paint No More! (Ala Notable Children's Books. Younger Readers (Awards)) Rain Reign (Ala Notable Children's Books. Middle Readers) Diary of a Wombat (Ala Notable Children's Books. Younger Readers (Awards)) Some Writer!: The

Story of E. B. White (Ala Notable Children's Books. All Ages) Hum (Ala Notable Books for Adults) Lawrence in Arabia: War, Deceit, Imperial Folly and the Making of the Modern Middle East (Ala Notable Books for Adults) Five Days at Memorial: Life and Death in a Storm-Ravaged Hospital (Ala Notable Books for Adults) Command and Control: Nuclear Weapons, the Damascus Accident, and the Illusion of Safety (Ala Notable Books for Adults) On the Map: A Mind-Expanding Exploration of the Way the World Looks (Ala Notable Books for Adults) Americanah (Ala Notable Books for Adults) The Readers' Advisory Guide to Genre Fiction (ALA Readers' Advisory) The Readers' Advisory Guide to Horror (ALA Readers' Advisory Series) Butterflies of North Carolina, South Carolina & Georgia: A Guide to Common & Notable Species (Common and Notable Species) National Geographic Readers: Ibn al-Haytham: The Man Who Discovered How We See (Readers Bios) Books For Kids : Charlie The Smart Elephant (FREE BONUS) (Bedtime Stories for Kids Ages 2 - 10) (Books for kids, Children's Books, Kids Books, puppy story, ... Books for Kids age 2-10, Beginner Readers) Books For Kids : Mimi finds a new friend (FREE BONUS) (Bedtime Stories for Kids Ages 2 - 10) (Books for kids, Children's Books, Kids Books, cat story, ... Books for Kids age 2-10, Beginner Readers) How I Discovered Poetry

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help