Customer Reviews

The Greenhaven Encyclopedia of Terrorism consists of 400 "Z" entries and is directed toward high-school students, grades 10-12. The volume is similar to the other Greenhaven Encyclopedia Of sets, eight of which have been published to date and cover the Middle Ages, witchcraft, and other topics, all designed to provide quick and easy access to information. According to the preface, the encyclopedia is intended only as an overview treating the most prominent groups, individuals, places, events, and issues connected with terrorism. Examples include Abu Sayyaf, Achille Lauro, Airport security measures, Montana Freeman, and Marx, Karl. Entry length ranges from several paragraphs to several pages. The volume also has a chronology of events current to

February 2007 and a bibliography of sources for further research, in addition to an index. Greenhaven's entry into the crowded field of encyclopedias of terrorism is significant in terms of its moderate price and its currency. Other encyclopedic treatments include Facts On File's single-volume, recently updated Encyclopedia of Terrorism (2007) as well as the multivolume Encyclopedia of Terrorism (Sage, 2003) and Encyclopedia of World Terrorism (Sharpe, 1997-2003). The Greenhaven title would be an appropriate purchase for a small public library or high-school media center that does not own other works on the topic. Grades 10-12. --Jerry Carbone
