How To Save A Life (Howl At The Moon Book 4)

Synopsis

Rav Miller looked into the terrified, intelligent eyes of the chocolate Labrador on death row, and knew he'd do anything to save him. When the dog, Sammy, escapes and heads to Mad Creek, Rav follows. Mad Creek. The town had become legendary in Rav's mind after he'd met that bizarre group last year. Rav dismissed his crazy suspicions back then, but when he arrives in Mad Creek, he knows it's true. Dog shifters exist, and apparently they all live in the California mountains. It's enough to blow a bad boy's mind. Sammy has something in common with Rav • neither one of them trusts people. After Sammy's abuse as a dog, he particularly dislikes tough-looking men like Rav. But when Sammy gets a chance to work with rescued dogs at the new Mad Creek shelter, his deep compulsion to help others overcomes his fear. Rav and Sammy bond over saving strays. If they can each find the courage to let someone else in, they might find their way to love. Sheriff Lance Beaufort doesn't like humans moving into Mad Creek, especially not the tattooed and defiant Rav. When Rav starts a rescue shelter, the town thinks he's wonderful! But Lance isn't fooled. He doesn't buy Rav's innocent act for one second. How much does Rav know about the quickened? What is his game? And why did he have to show up now, when Lance and the other town leaders are overwhelmed by all the new quickened pouring in? Rav knows how to save a life. But can he save an entire town? Can he rescue Mad Creek? This is an 80,000 word novel, book #4 in the "Howl at the Moon" series. It features a new couple and can be read as a standalone, but we recommend reading the series in order.

Read previous books in series first. Who would have thought a book series about dog shifters would be so entertaining, emotional and sweet. Thankfully, Eli Easton did and she wrote it. Sammy is a special being. Rav sees something in Sammy's eyes from the first. Tac needs love. He just doesn't know it. This story made me smile. It made me happy. It brought tears to my eyes. Always a good sign of a book worth reading.

Oh man, was this thirty seven kinds of fcking adorable! Yes, it was. And then some. It was sweet, it was fun, it was funny, it was heartwarming, it was charmingly cheesy... it was total fantasy and unbelievably real all at the same time. Well done

(I'm not sure if this is the last book in the series, but who knows? Definitely on my read again pile.)

Uplifting funny and a joy to read. Low angst but such a fascinating world. I get the feeling this is the last novel in the series, but who knows? Definitely on my read again pile.

Wow! This 4th book is definitely my favorite of the series, although my favorite couple is still Lance and Tim. I guess I'm feeling sentimental, seeing how far the community have come, everyone played a huge role in this series, especially Lance and Lily. We even have a great epilogue, which makes me feel melancholy, I wonder if this is the last we will read of Mad Creek. I miss this weird small town with all their dog-shifters. Rav is the tattoo biker with the heart of gold that we met in Book 3 and played a small role in helping with the virus crisis. He already felt weirded out by Jason and his friends previously, but now that he tracked his rescued dog, Sammy to Mad Creek, he is sure there is something seriously wrong with the population there. Instead of fleeing, Rav decided to stay and build a new dog shelter in Mad Creek, much to Lance's annoyance. Lance, our beloved Sheriff is constantly on the verge of a heart attack. His paranoia is through the roof and even Tim, his husband can only do so much to placate him. Milo is a total dear and his exuberance in meeting Rav again is so sweet. Sammy is the new quickened that escaped from Rav's shelter and due to his previous abusive owner, he is timid and shy. But Rav was really patient with him and over time Sammy grew to trust and love Rav. I love Sammy's attempt at humor the best! And Rav always call him a 'goof' in a very lovable way. Sammy seems really innocent like Milo in the relationship department, but the relationship progression seems natural and have sufficient heat, definitely much more than what I experience between Milo/Jason and Roman/Matt. We also have to deal with the town's overpopulation and unemployment issue. Rav decided to help the town that he called his home despite some serious hostility from Lance. Things were pretty tense there for a moment, but as usual, all was resolved and we have a very fulfilling HEA. I guess it was pretty far fetch for Rav to pull it off, but considering we are reading about a dog-shifter town, you just have to believe in the fantasy.

5 Stars! OH MY F, DO I EVER LOVE AND ADORE THIS SERIES! SO HARD! No pun intended. How To Save A Life is the fourth book in Eli Easton's Howl at the Moon series. I absolutely adore these books. This is a unique, sweet and hilarious M/M PNR-esque series that will leave you clutching your heart as well as howling with laughter. While the second book, How to Walk Like a Man, still remains my favorite of the series because of Roman, I still loved reading this tale about a rebellious dog rescuer and a newly quickened young man. I will advise that it is best to read this series in sequential order. I feel like this is the best way to take in the awesomeness of what Ms. Easton has created here. Rav Miller is a character that we have met in book three in the series as he played a prominent role in that storyline. He operates a no-kill animal shelter in Arizona and he is a human. Rav often goes to animal shelters that have high-kill rates and are over populated and rescues the dogs that have a higher chance of meeting their demise. On one of his visits to a high-kill shelter he meets a sweet chocolate lab who is absolutely terrified. Sammy has recently gained the ability to become human. In other words, he is newly quickened. He experienced a lot of abuse as a dog and is fairly gun-shy around rough looking men. This includes the bearded-man with kind eyes who saves him from the animal shelter. When Sammy makes his way to Mad Creek, Rav decides to follow, particularly since he met a few of the town's strange residents the year prior. There Rav discovers that dog shifters do exist! Rav and Sammy bond over their love of working with rescued strays. As the pair begin to spend more time with one another, they slowly begin to worm their way into each other's hearts. Sammy needs time to learn what it is truly like to be a human. Is Rav the right person to teach him? Further, the highly suspicious town sheriff is not making things easy for Rav despite the fact that he has some wonderful ideas for the town. I loved Sammy. Everything from his innocence to his pure heart had me smiling from ear to ear. He was so untainted and trusting and I just wanted to hug him! His need to belong and the fact that he wanted so desperately to help just added to his adorableness. Rav gives off this bad-boy persona; however, underneath it all he has a heart of gold. He could not help but get swept away by the sweetness that was Sammy. I really enjoyed this sugary tale of love with little angst and moderate steam levels. Both characters were endearing and I could not help but root for their relationship. What starts off as a simple friendship between Rav and Sammy, blossoms into something more. It was a fine balancing act for both males as they attempted to navigate the bumpy road to a happy forever and truly discover just how much they meant to each other. Rav and Sammy both had a lot to learn but the more entwined they became with one another, the more the risk of falling in love seemed worth it. All in all, this light-hearted romance that was a lot of fun to read. I loved being back in the town of Mad Creek and catching up with all the crazy and quirky residents. I am definitely looking forward to more books in this delightful series. How To Save a Life is yet another adorable, engaging and well-written story by Ms. Easton. Definitely worth the read for all lovers of M/M romance.
