Shawn Perich is a writer and avid angler who lives on the North Shore. Shawn has served as the editor of the Cook County Herald in Grand Marais and as the editor of Fins and Feathers magazine. His work has appeared in Sports Afield and Fly Rod and Reel. He is a regular columnist for Outdoor News.

This book covers the Superior shore from Lester River to the Canadian border. It's a meditative guide to natural features, parks, and culture of this part of the State of Minnesota. It's full of anecdotes and excursions on the area and what has been done there over history. Only sketchy maps and pen-and-ink drawings on the margin. It's really not a guidebook, rather something to read while you're traveling in the region. There's little information on commercial stuff and facilities, so it hasn't aged as much as its time of printing (1992) might lead you to expect. Very much worth a look, though you'd want some other source(s) of information if you're not already familiar with the area.
