Jon Lewis (Ph.D., 1983 UCLA) is a Professor in the English department at Oregon State University, where he has taught film and cultural studies since 1983. He has published five books: The Road to Romance and Ruin: Teen Films and Youth Culture (Routledge, 1992); Whom God Wishes to Destroy . . . Francis Coppola and the New Hollywood (Duke UP, 1995); The New American Cinema (Duke UP, 1998); Hollywood v. Hard Core: How the Struggle over Censorship Saved the Modern Film Industry (NYU Press, 2000); and The End of Cinema as We Know It: American Film in the Nineties (NYU Press, 2001). In the past two years, Professor Lewis has appeared in two theatrically released documentaries on film censorship: Inside Deep Throat (Fenton Baily, 2005) and This Film is Not Yet Rated (Kirby Dick, 2006). From 2002 to 2007, he was the Editor of Cinema Journal.

I needed it for school. A good quality book.

Lewis touches upon all the important parts of film in history, The language isn't too academic, but chock full of information!

Looks like a new book maybe used once or twice.

Good reading on film history!

This is a good book. It illustrates the history of the American film industry. I really enjoyed reading this Book.

Awesome book. I read it for a history of cinema class. It is very interesting.

Very interesting book! Lots of fun reading from it for my American Cinema class.

My professor chose the book for our film class and it is required reading. I am happy with this purchase. :)
