The Magic Tree House whisks Jack and Annie back to the eve of the first Thanksgiving. There they meet the Pilgrims as well as Squanto, a Native American who helped them. The story offers an age-appropriate, in-depth picture of what life was really like for early settlers, as well as the usual

Magic Tree House adventure and excitement.

MARY POPE OSBORNE is the author of the New York Times number one bestselling Magic Tree House series. She and her husband, writer Will Osborne (author of Magic Tree House: The Musical), live in northwestern Connecticut with their three dogs. Ms. Osborne is also the coauthor of the companion Magic Tree House Fact Trackers series with Will, and with her sister, Natalie Pope Boyce. Â SAL MURDOCCA has illustrated more than 200 children's trade and text books. He is also a librettist for children's opera, a video artist, an avid runner, hiker, and bicyclist, and a teacher of children's illustration at the Parsons School of Design. Sal lives and works in New York with his wife, Nancy.

Magic Tree House is great at teaching historical facts and events to very young children. They are also very simple to read and characters are always fascinating. Though to the adult reader the repetition in text formats and language may be boring, not to so to the younger crowd... Under 10 children love repetition exactly like their younger children do. This particular books is no exception. The two siblings go to Plymouth on the day of the first thanksgiving and get busy helping Priscilla, a young Pilgrim, to get ready for the huge feast. Of course, nothing goes exactly like they want them to go, but that helps them find out what is really important. I would recommend this book to children in second and third grade. I think that older children might be challenged with something more difficult.

I just finished reading this to my six year old granddaughter and my ten year old grandson that I home school. They could have each read it on their own but, some things I like for us to read together. We all three really enjoyed the book and I will be looking for more books to use out of this series soon.

This time we learned about the First Thanksgiving, Squanto, and Priscilla. But most importantly, we learned what community means and how Thankful we should be for all the modern day amenities we have and for our friends and family. Once again, Jack and Annie have taught us important lessons, all while sharing another great adventure with us! Now we're off to learn about Hawaii!

My second grade students are reading this in Language Arts and the nonfiction book Pilgrims in Social Studies. Teachers Pay Teachers have wonderful booklets to use with both books.

My class loved this book as we read it. They are thankful for Mary Pope Osborne. She is very creative and we love to learn history about the first Thanksgiving!

I splurged and ordered a copy for all 7 of my students. We read aloud as a class, and thoroughly enjoyed it. It was a good way for them to learn about Pilgrims, Plymouth Colony, Squanto, etc. It was exciting to me when a student who is a struggling reader was the first to figure out that Jack and Annie had found the magic.

A super addition to my grandson's collection. I love how he can truly enjoy being 6 and the Magic Tree House books so enhance his creative imagination. Warms my Heart that in this crazy world, he can be a little kid. delivered it in record speed and then I sent it to him. Helps me with my Great Gramma rep.

I love the way this book informs students about the history of the Pilgrims.
